A. THEY'VE ALL SPOKEN ABOUT HEARING VOICES

Many famous and important people have shared their experiences of hearing voices. In some cultures, hearing voices is seen as a gift - something to be proud of, not feared. So if you, or someone you know, hears voices - you're in good company.

Around 8% of children and young people hear voices (that's 1 in 12!). For most, the voices simply aren't a problem. Life can be hard, though. Young people who are having a tough time may hear voices that are confusing or scary. Difficult voices can really get in the way of living your life - so it's vital to get some extra help to find ways of dealing with them.

Voice Collective works across London to support children & young people who hear voices, see visions or have other unusual experiences.
